Dear Mr Thompson,

Thank you for contacting the European Ombudsman. You complained to the Ombudsman regarding the European Laboratory for Particle Physics (CERN), which you consider has engaged in maladministration by suppressing your theory and account, misusing public funds, and violating rights and its own internal rules.

I am sorry to have to inform you that the European Ombudsman cannot deal with your complaint. This is because it concerns an organisation that is not within her mandate.

The European Ombudsman can investigate only complaints that concern the administrative work of the European Union's institutions and bodies, for instance the European Commission and European Union agencies.¹ The CERN is not an European Union institution, although it receives funding from the European Union.

Please note that the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF) is entrusted to protect the financial interests of the European Union by investigating fraud, corruption and any other illegal activities, and carries out inquiries into alleged fraudulent activities. Therefore, if you consider that EU funds are managed inappropriately, you could consider contacting them for advice on how to submit a complaint. Their contact details can be found here:
